Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Saturday 05 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Some sunshine. Scattered showers, mostly in Northwest.

Today:
A lot of dry, bright weather with some sunshine. Clouds building with scattered showers breaking out, most frequent, heavier over northwest Highlands this afternoon and evening. Quite warm with light winds.

Tonight:
Showers in the north gradually dying out, then a dry night with clear periods. Winds will be light and it will turn chilly towards dawn.

Sunday:
Most places will have a dry, bright day with sunny spells. There may be a few light showers over southern Scotland in the afternoon. Warm again with light winds.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Mostly dry, settled weather continuing with sunny spells. However there will be a few showers on Monday afternoon then cloudier skies and a little rain edging in during Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.